DID YOU KNOW...

It was a news article, which pointed out that it was possible to travel around the world in less than 90 days, that gave Jules Verne the idea for the story of Phileas Fogg. After reading the article, Jules Verne immediately began to imagine the people he would like to make such a perilous journey with. From Jules Verne's homeroom, the characters of Phileas Fogg and the servant Passepartout were created with use of cardboard figures that he moved around on a massive world map he had on the wall. Already one year later, the book was written.
